

Public Noise is a free sound-sharing social network website that allows people to send and download sounds and music. I wanted to make an anonymous and minimal social network site with a focus on sounds and music using supabase storage. I had inspiration from freesound.org and soundcloud.com as they have a free sound share model that allows anyone to upload songs to their website. The posts are public and are put in a public folder for everyone to access. I hope to make it easier to find sounds through this website.
